TOWN CAUCUS.

Lively Time Over Assessorship.

Shortly after eight o'clock on Thursday evening the annual caucus to nominate town officers was held in the Town hall. The caucus was called to order by Mr. E. S. Farmer, chairman of the board of selectmen. Mr. Warren W. Rawson, on motion of Mr. Frank W. Hodgdon, was chosen chairman of the meeting. Mr. Stephen B. Wood was made secretary, and then the business of the caucus opened by starting in to nominate candidates.

On motion of Mr. Hodgdon, Mr. B. Delmont Locke was chosen town clerk and treasurer. This will make 25 years Mr. Locke has faithfully served the town in this capacity.

Mr. E. S. Fessenden nominated Mr. Walter Crosby for selectman, the vote being unanimous.

Mr. Farmer nominated Mr. George I. Doe for assessor, while Mr. Clarence T. Parsons nominated Mr. L. D. Bradley.

This called for a vote by ballot, and it was plainly seen there would be a large vote cast. Mr. Bradley at this point made a statement in writing, and gave his reasons for running.

Mr. Farmer made a motion that voting begin, and the chair appointed the following to act as tellers: Messrs. N. E. Whittier, J. C. Holmes, and J. W. White.

The result was as follows: G. I. Doe, 93, L. D. Bradley, 103—the latter receiving the nomination.

The school board was next in order, the retiring members being: Messrs. W. H. Tuttle, Peter Schwamb and Timothy O'Leary.

Mr. Wm. G. Peck stated that Mr. Schwamb declined to serve another term owing to poor health and business engagements, and nominated Mr. Walter Crosby. The vote was unanimous.

Mr. Peck again stated that Mrs. Peatfield, who had so faithfully served the town as a member of the board, had refused to serve, owing to poor health, and placed Mrs. Henry Hornblower on the ticket for the remaining two years. The remaining officers were nominated without a dissenting vote.

A new office was created, that of tree warden, and Mr. R. W. LeBaron was chosen, an excellent choice.

Mr. M. S. Drew requested that the acts of 1899 relating to eight hours being a working day for town laborers be inserted in the ballot.

He was requested to put the same in writing, and it was referred to the selectmen for action.

At nine o'clock the caucus adjourned. Below is the full list of officers nominated:

Town clerk and treasurer, B. Delmont Locke.
Selectman, 3 years, Walter Crosby.
Assessor, 3 years, L. D. Bradley.
School committee, 3 years, W. H. Tuttle, Timothy O'Leary, Walter Crosby; 2 years, Mrs. Hattie F. Hornblower.
Water commissioner, 3 years, George P. Winn.
Sewer commissioner, 3 years, Warren W. Rawson.
Board of health, Dr. E. P. Stickney.
Commissioner of sinking fund, Theodore Schwamb.
Trustee of Pratt fund, George Hill.
Trustees of Robbins library, Frank W. Hodgdon, E. N. Blake.
Trustees of Robbins fund, soldiers' monument fund and cemeteries, W. G. Peck, F. S. Frost.
Park Commissioners, E. S. Fessenden, W. W. Kimball.
Auditors, A. F. Marston, J. R. Mann.
Tree warden, R. W. LeBaron.
Constables, D. M. Hooley, James E. Whitten, Garret J. Cody, A. S. Harriman, C. H. Woods.
Moderator, W. A. Robinson.

POP CONCERT.

The Pop concert given in the Town hall on Saturday evening was a unique and enjoyable affair. The elite of Arlington made up the brilliant social company. The four-leave clover with small electric lights was the radiant emblem of the evening. Poole's orchestra rendered a delightful programme. The tables, numbering forty-one, were artistically arranged around the audience-room of the hall. Among those at the tables were: Mrs. John Hardy, Mrs. John Hardy, Jr., Mr. Horace Hardy, Dr. and Mrs. Percy, Miss Laura Fessenden, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin A. Norton, Miss King, Mr. and Mrs. Parris, Mr. and Mrs. Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Allen, Miss Florence Hicks, Dr. and Mrs. E. P. Stickney, Mr. and Mrs. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall N. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Bullard, ex-Governor and Mrs. Brackett, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Willard G. Rolfe, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Churchill, Mrs. Peter Schwamb, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hornblower, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Farmer, Dr. and Mrs. Dennett, Rev. and Mrs. Bushnell and others. Although Arlington is an out-and-out temperance town, yet this jolly company frequently called for "drinks"—but mind you, it was not "the cup that inebriates."

There were ginger ale, sarsaparilla, moxie, coffee, ice cream, sherbet, cake and sandwiches. The evening was a decidedly interesting one. All were in their most agreeable mood, so that conversation in no instance lagged. The Clover Lend-a-hand well understand how to arrange and carry out a successful entertainment.

PLEASANT TIME.

A very pleasant social entertainment was held in Odd Fellows' Hall Monday evening. After the regular meeting and initiation of Bay State, No. 418, L. O. L., the hall was thrown open to invited guests. State G. M. Arthur Bentley, S. G. S. James Chambers, S. G. Chaplain, Rev. A. D. McKinnon and P. S. G. M. Thomas Mulligan made interesting addresses on the progress of the order the year past. The entertainment consisted of baritone solos, Robert Milligan; violin solo, Perry Durling; reading, W. J. Coleman; musical artists, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ryder; piano solo; Lizzie McManus and Annie Parker, reading, James Chambers. After the program Mr. G. J. Cragan presented P. M., M. A. Ross, with an elegant gold past master's jewel. Ice cream, cake, coffee and sandwiches were served. All had a good time and wait patiently for another gathering next year. Mr. James Gammond was chosen a committee of one to procure the jewel.

NINTH ANNIVERSARY.

The members of the Girls' Friendly society of St. John's parish, St. Perpetua Chapter, celebrated their ninth anniversary on Wednesday evening by a supper in the Parish house. Three tables were bountifully and elegantly spread, and the chapter and its guests, to the number of 32 in all, had an enjoyable and merry time. A valentine was found by the side of each plate, Wednesday being St. Valentine's day. After supper the annual meeting was held, the reports of officers were read, and the election of officers made. Mrs. Wheeler is president and Miss Helen Arms is secretary for the coming year. The members then gave a report of their individual efforts to earn a dollar during the summer. The reports, some of which were in rhyme, were quite amusing. One told of gathering cherries, another of gathering and peddling blueberries, while sewing on buttons, marking linen, brushing clothes and finishing photographs were among the modes of industry undertaken, for purposes of charity, by these practical young women. The Rev. James B. Werner, rector of Lexington, gave an interesting and forcible address on "What we can do for the church," and Miss Whipple of Boston, diocesan secretary, gave a very interesting account of the work and purposes of the G. F. S., and especially of the Holiday House and Convalescent Summer Home for girls in this diocese. After encouraging words by the rector, a hymn and prayers, the meeting closed, with pleasant memories and bright hopes.

TRACKS ON BROADWAY A SURETY.

A Lively Discussion Over Medford Street Route.

As the time set for the hearing of the proposed location of the B. E. R. R. Co.'s tracks on Broadway and Medford street drew near Monday evening it was evident, by the large attendance, that our citizens were interested in the matter quite largely, the Town hall being nearly filled with those for and against the same.

Chairman E. S. Farmer called the meeting to order, and read the petition of the B. E. R. R. Co.

After reading the same and the order calling for the hearing, Mr. L. F. Hyde, attorney for the road, was called upon by Mr. Farmer. Mr. Hyde stated that the president of the road, Mr. Bancroft, would present the case for the road, and called upon him.

Mr. Bancroft presented the petitioners' side in a manly and business way, receiving the closest attention of his hearers.

Mr. Farmer requested Mr. Bancroft to present the Broadway location first.

Mr. Bancroft said: I am here as petitioner for both locations, but at Mr. Farmer's request will confine myself to Broadway, as this route seems to be the desire of the citizens of the town more than any other. It is proposed to have the street macadamized, but before this is done the tracks must be laid. The company does not wish to build on Broadway unless the citizens demand it, but as they do ask it the company wish to act reasonably in the matter. The company would build and maintain about 10,000 square yards on this thoroughfare. The tax to the town would be $4500 or $5000 annually, as this was the law of the state and called a corporation tax. About Medford street, a grant had been made by Medford and Somerville for location of tracks along Broadway, near Powder house park to Teel square, College avenue, to Boston avenue, across Mystic river, and was a direct route to Sullivan square, Charlestown, the terminus of the elevated. The company is not favorable to single tracks, they being dangerous. Sometimes it is charged that the company controls the streets, but it is not so. We will build the road on Broadway any way, whether we build on Medford street or not. (Great applause.)

Mr. E. R. Thayer of , who appeared for the Medford street remonstrants, asked Mr. Bancroft when the company would build on Broadway.

Mr. Bancroft. Build now, or as soon as frost is out of the ground.

Mr. Howard W. Spurr expressed his gratification at the railroad's attitude, and it would save the town $10,000.

Mr. G. W. Moore seconded Mr. Spurr's remarks, and was glad the tracks were to be laid, as he thought the citizens had gone around the "cape" long enough to reach Medford.

Mr. W. A. Muller said he was pleased, as he felt the road would develop a large tract of land on this street, and be of substantial benefit to the town.

Mr. Thayer read the petition of the remonstrants on Medford street who favored River street instead. The petition was signed by a large number who opposed the Medford street route.

Mr. W. W. Rawson: This same subject was here six months ago, and I spoke against it then, and am here tonight to oppose it, being represented (except three or four) by all the residents on the street. Medford street is too narrow. It is not safe for Russell school children or those at Parochial school. Of course at the cemetery no one will object. And again, Medford street is second in travel of our streets, 1000 travelling this street some days. I trust no track will be laid until some other way to the boulevard is provided. I favor River street. The storekeepers object to the proposed location. If Medford street is taken, Pleasant street will come next, and then the road has got the town.

Rev. J. M. Mulcahy asked if it would be in order to have petitioners' names read. It was granted.

Mr. Mulcahy said he was not for or against the location, and that the sentiments of residents were not unanimous against the tracks. Last year he was opposed, but this year he had changed his mind on account of changed conditions. He said it would be advantageous in going from Arlington to Boston through Medford, but while he was not in favor of it yet he would yield to the same for the greater good of all, and failed to see why the location should not be granted.

Mr. R. J. Hardy was pleased to know Broadway was to have a line, but hoped the Medford street route would be submitted to the people.

Mr. W. H. Nolan said he believed the location would be beneficial, a benefit rather than a detriment. He thought the roads of President Bancroft good, although they had been criticised. There was no accident on Mystic street side of Russell school or at Cutter school. He was heartily in favor of the plans, as it would benefit those who did not have horses.

Mr. Fred S. Hicks was not in favor of the location, as it was not adapted for same, and hoped the board would not grant it.

Mr. Powers: There is no communication to Medford or Malden. The majority have to walk or go in a round-about way. The town will increase by thus connecting. The large income to the town is of great value.

Mr. Frank W. Hodgdon favored River street, as it can be widened at a small cost. The store keepers below the track do not favor a third track on Mass. avenue for terminus. River street was fully as valuable to the public, and the track would be a quarter of a mile less. Medford street was too narrow, and if widened would be a great expense.

Mr. E. S. Fessenden favored River street. He thought the matter had been fairly treated, and should be left with the board.

Mr. Chas. Gott favored River street, and could not see why it would not be of benefit to the town through this street.

Mr. Thayer summed up the matter in a very careful manner for those against the location, and showed many points why the same should not be granted.

Mr. Bancroft said a few words in the road's behalf, and the meeting closed at 10.45.

THE CAUCUS.

The citizens' caucus which was held on Thursday evening in the Town hall was well attended. As will be seen by our report in another column, the several nominations to official positions were made. Mr. Doe, a member of the present board of assessors, in spite of Mr. Bradley's nomination by a majority of ten to the position made vacant on the board by the expiration of Mr. Doe's term, will nevertheless, by request of his many friends, run at the approaching town meeting for the office he now holds. We wrote in our issue of Feb. 3, under the head of "Town Meeting," as follows: "So long as the public official faithfully performs the duties assigned him, just so long should he be continued in office." And for this reason we are decidedly in favor of the re-election of George I. Doe to the assessorship, and for this reason we shall vote for him. It is the testimony of all Arlington that Mr. Doe has made a competent and faithful member of the board of assessors.

The nomination of Mr. Walter Crosby for membership upon our school board is peculiarly a happy one. The people of Arlington pleasantly remember Mr. Josiah Crosby, the father of Walter, who was for so many years associated with the supervisory management of our public schools. We, who taught under the elder Crosby, surely will never forget his timely counsel and words of encouragement in our school work. It is fitting that his son take up the work in which the father was so interested, and for the accomplishment of which he labored so intelligently and so conscientiously. That Mr. Walter Crosby should succeed himself upon the board of selectmen is a logical sequence of what is both wise and right.

The again unanimous re-nomination of Mr. B. Delmont Locke to the office of town clerk does credit to Arlington. Mr. Locke is thoroughly familiar with every detail of his office, and he is both competent and faithful in the execution of every duty. We'll venture that there is no town clerk throughout the length and breadth of Massachusetts who surpasses Mr. Locke in his system and accurate execution of town affairs.

Arlington has indeed much reason to be satisfied with its present town management.

ALL ABOARD!

"All aboard for Boston by way of Somerville" will soon be heard along our line of electric roads. Arlington believes in hitching on in many ways to the big outside world, and this too at the earliest moment practicable. "All roads lead to Rome" has in it the soundest philosophy. "To get there" in the quickest possible time, and in more ways than one, is business from start to finish. Frequent and a variety of highways of travel are always so many invitations for outsiders to cross our lines and so come into our own territory and make themselves at home. No Chinese wall can hem in a live American town. A healthful law of growth will admit of no barriers in the way. The double track electric road all along Broadway to Somerville which is soon to be, will prove of great advantage to this locality, both as a matter of convenience and of business. And then we are likely to become connected with Medford by the electric as soon as our people can definitely fix upon the line. Arlington is rapidly becoming a railroad centre so far as the electric road is concerned; and as a centre she will in a logical way reach out in every direction. The Boston & Maine railroad with its frequent trains, together with two other electric roads added to the two we already have must necessarily place Arlington in the very forefront of the suburbs of Boston. Again we shout "all aboard for Boston" by any of our several lines of travel.

TELL THE TRUTH.

That was an inspired hour with Grover Cleveland when he said "tell the truth." Truth is one of the rarest virtues. A distinguished writer has declared that "there is nothing half so easy as lying." A truthful man is everywhere respected. His word passes current. No one ever doubts him or questions him. He said it, and that is enough. In the whole catalogue of faults there is hardly one that cannot more readily be forgiven than that of deception or outright lying.

There is any amount of unconscious lying in the world. All exaggerated statements come under this head. Not unfrequently does it happen that one tells the same lie over so many times that he comes to believe it true. We know of a man who is forevermore recounting to his friends his personal experiences in life. One day it happened that an acquaintance followed him through his usual recount, carefully noting the dates of those events in which the man of such a variety of experiences was the chief actor, when it was found that he must according to his reckoning have lived something over two hundred years.

Why not not be content to tell the simple truth? "Tell the truth and shame the devil" is a whole sermon in itself.

SCHOOL MANAGEMENT.

There is a very interesting discussion going on in Boston among the leading educators concerning the supervisory management of our public schools. Without going over the field of discussion, we desire only to say at present that the point at issue is largely in regard to the number that shall compose our school boards. It is affirmed by many of those who have the best interests of the children at heart that our school boards are made burdensome and unwieldy by reason of their multiplied membership, and in all this we agree. To come directly to the thought we have in mind it would be infinitely preferable that Arlington should have a school board composed of three members instead of nine as at present constituted, and then, could we have our say, each one of the three should receive a fair compensation for services rendered. There can be no reason why a member of the school board should give his and her services to the town. And besides, gratuitous labor is not likely to be so faithfully and efficiently performed as that which receives just remuneration.

Then in regard to the number nine; it makes, as we have already said, an unwieldy membership. It can be readily seen by every one that points of disagreement will necessarily more frequently arise among nine than among three. We all "have axes to grind." This fact is one of the weaknesses of human nature, so it is always policy to work officially with a minimum number. With three members on our Arlington school board there could be two appointed to attend to the intellectual supervision of the schools, and one to attend to the business affairs belonging to them. The inefficiency of a school board usually is in exact proportion to its multiplied membership; or better the other way, its efficiency is in exact proportion to its minimum membership. There can be no more reason why our school board should have nine members than there is that a cat should have two tails. The cat with a second appendage wouldn't know what to do with it, and no more does our school board with its membership of nine know what to do with its extra and useless numbers. Give us, we suggest, a board of three, and then pay the three for their supervisory work. By such an arrangement don't you see what difficulties would be obviated? In the first place there would likely be no snarl or criss-cross work in the election or re-election of teachers. It is eminently fair and just that a school official should earnestly recommend a friend whom he knows to be competent to a position in the schools under his supervision, but when you come to have nine of these friends pushed and urged for the position in question then will one likely recognize the tricks of the politician in the attempt to secure the place for his or her candidate. We have known in our experience more than one large school board to strike a destructive snag in the election of school teachers. And then again take the question of text-books to be used in the public schools. How much more readily three could agree upon so important a matter than it would be possible for nine to do. This school book business has become a gigantic monopoly, so the less the number having to do with it the better.

If Arlington has already the right to have a school board of three she ought to avail herself of the privilege that is already hers. If she has not the right, then she should ask it of the state. A school board of three at a fair remuneration would be for Arlington a step forward in the educational world.

WHAT IS "INDECENT?"

While we are inclined to believe with the majority that the play of "Sapho" as now seen in Wallack's in New York city is not in good taste, and that in its portrayal of life may not be even "decent," yet we believe that the term "indecent" is oftentimes misapplied. "To the pure all things are pure." We often shrug our shoulders at the nude in art, and point the finger of shame at the highest achievement in the artistic world, simply because we have not learned the lesson that God has set in his creative mastership of the human form. These bodies of ours are not indecent, and never can be, only as we make them so.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York city is a picture gallery of exquisite beauty and of innocence in its statuary department. We have no sympathy with that man or woman who cannot look upon the human form as represented in marble and at the same time not unblushingly admire the symmetrical outline of these bodies of ours, and at the same time admire the genius of art. In this connection we must repeat what before has been written of an artist friend of ours in Paris. The young man in question is the son of a Congregational minister in a neighboring state. When our young friend began his art work in Paris from the nude he wrote his father of the fact, and asked him what he had to say or advise? The father immediately replied as follows: "My son, you do right in copying from the nude; only, I beseech of you, remember that God furnishes the exquisite copy." Nothing that God has made can be unclean or indecent, and this fact we must recognize just so long as we recognize that God is the infinite artist.

THE MOLINEUX TRIAL.

The Molineux trial which has just ended, after a long three months' session of court in New York city, has created unusual interest throughout the country, and it is becoming more and more evident as the days succeed each other that a large majority of the people are surprised to say the least at the verdict of "guilty." While it is very generally thought that Molineux may have committed the crime for which he is arraigned, still it is insisted on all sides that the evidence brought out by the prosecution ought not to have found the prisoner guilty. There is little doubt that a new trial will be granted by the court of appeals.

We very much question both the policy and moral right of capital punishment. It is in evidence in those states where the death penalty does not attach to the crime of murder that crime has not increased. And then by what right, moral or divine, can the state kill its man and then withhold the same right from the individual? Our reformatory schools and prisons are for the purpose of the safe keeping of those who will not obey the law. It is all nonsense to longer claim that capital punishment deters one bent on murder from slaying his victim. Statistics does not show the claim to be a fact. Imprisonment for life should be the punishment for murder, with the pardoning, however, abolished.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE.

Pursuant to and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Gilbert F. Young and Lucy E. Young, wife of Gilbert F. Young, in her right, to Nellie M. Farmer, dated September 14, 1897, and recorded with Middlesex co. dist. deeds, book 2894, page 48, for breach of the conditions contained in said mortgage deed, and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, as to the parcel located in Arlington, will be sold at public auction on the premises on the first parcel hereinafter described, being the parcel located in Arlington, on Monday, the twelfth day of March A. D. 1900, at three o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises located in Arlington conveyed in and by said mortgage deed, viz.:
Two certain parcels of land with the buildings thereon. The first parcel situated in Arlington in said county of Middlesex, and comprises lot No. "fifteen" (15) in block "five" (5) of section "B" as shown on a plan of said section of the land of the Arlington Land Company, by Whitman & Brock, surveyors, recorded with Middlesex co. dist. deeds, plan book 21, plan No. 2. Said parcel is bounded as follows: Westerly by Claremont avenue, seventy-five (75) feet; southerly by lot No. 14 on said plan, one hundred and fifty (150) feet; easterly by lots Nos. 4 and 5 on said plan, seventy and 65-100 (70-65) feet; northerly by lot No. 16 on said plan, one hundred and fifty (150) feet. Containing 10,925 square feet. Subject to the restrictions contained in a deed from the trustees of the Arlington Land Co., J. O. Weatherhead, dated August 18, 1891, recorded with Middlesex co. dist. deeds, book 1498, page 59. The second parcel is situated in Medford, as aforesaid, and comprises a portion of lots "sixty-two" and "fifty-one" on a plan entitled "Plan No. 5 of land in Medford owned by William Tufts, et al., Alfred Tufts, et al., April, 1891, and recorded with Middlesex co. dist. deeds, plan book 10, plan No. 17." Said parcel is bounded as follows: Southwesterly by Main street, thirty-five and 3-100 (35-03) feet; southerly by lots Nos. 63 and 50 on said plan, one hundred and twenty-four and 38-100 (124-38) feet; northerly by land now or formerly of Samuel A. Smith, thirty-five (35) feet; northwesterly by land now or formerly of Samuel A. Smith, one hundred and twenty-six and 12-100 (126-12) feet. Containing 4889 square feet.
As the mortgage on the second parcel located in Medford given by the grantors to Samuel A. Smith for $2700, has been foreclosed, this sale will apply only to the first parcel which is located in Arlington.
Said premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, assessments and tax sales, if any there are. Other terms made known at sale.

BURDEN BEARING.

"Bearing and shedding burdens" was Dr. Watson's topic at the people's service on Sunday night. The congregation was as large as usual, and listened with close attention to the earnest and practical presentation of the subject. The preacher had these texts, two from Galatians vi. and one from Psalm iv. Here are the three, "Every man must bear his own burden," "Bear ye one another's burdens," and "Cast thy burden on the Lord." He began by saying that these texts were not contradictory. Not even inharmonious. They are a triple cord. There is never anything contradictory between truths. Error and truth conflict, but truths run along parallel like the tracks of the railroad. They might belt the globe and there could be no collision.

First comes the burden that a man must bear: his own. This, in the nature of things, cannot be exchanged. The entire cast of a man's life and circumstance is his own. Yet he strangely indulges a covetous desire to change his own lot for that of another that seems easier. He persists in looking from the inside of his life upon the outside of another's. Often the man whose burden he covets is also coveting the identical exchange. Sometimes when we are care-free for a time and are at our best, or are making a successful effort to look happier than we are, some one makes bold to say, "O I wish I had as happy a life as yours!" And the shallow compliment only emphasizes the truth that there is a burden which every man must bear alone, and that without sympathy. No burden seems so serious or burdensome as our own. We are only a little less absurd than our boys who are fascinated with the activities of toiling men, and long to be motor-men, conductors, engineers or teamsters. The toils of men seem like holiday sports to their boys. Among men it is not greatly different. The porter sees the merchant living hand somely, sitting at his desk or walking about the warehouse with quiet authority, and he envies him. The merchant sees him tumbling about his barrels boxes and bundles, taking his wages lighting his pipe and driving off home to sleep without a care; and as his eyes run over the stacks of goods still unsold, and perhaps thinks of a hundred operatives at the factory for whose well-being he is responsible, how he would like the porter's burden! Dr. Cuyler tells of a planter in Alabama in slavery times. His long line of slaves were carrying bags of rice, loading a steamer moored at the wharf. As they trotted cheerily with their burdens they were singing those grand, weird songs with which God seems especially to have gifted the African race. The planter turned his care-worn face to Dr. Cuyler and said: "They can sing with their burden, but I cannot with mine. It is a dreadful thing to own a hundred immortal beings." Labor and capital must bear burdens that can only be lightened when both are determined to be just. Then there are the burdens of sorrow, death, physical infirmity, incessant difficulty, that must be borne. Surely God had a purpose in his plan for us that includes such loads as these. We must seek under them for the hidden secret of grand capacity and endurance, and never expect the priceless powers of character to come through self-indulgence and ease. Ease is not blessedness, but difficulty is, difficulty met, borne, conquered in the spirit of Gethsemane and the cross. Climb, then, the hills of difficulty and get the strength the burden was sent to give you.

Secondly, there are the burdens we should bear. "One another's burdens." Here we have sympathy and helpfulness taught to us. Christ was always getting his hand under a burdened one. He went on a long and weary journey into Galilee for no other purpose that I could ever discover but to help that poor woman who wanted her daughter healed. There is a wonderful difference between an open hand and a closed fist when a brother is already down. Paul had in mind such an one in this text. He spoke of the man suddenly fronted and pulled down by a temptation. What shall we do in such a case? Use his fault as a club to strike him down again? A kind word at the critical moment, a brother's eye and hand, has snatched many a burdened one from despair. A friend standing by a young man at the parting of the ways has often been one of God's switchmen to turn him from the wrong into the right way. The burden of the young is inexperience, unsuspicion, over-confidence, unconsciousness of the imminent difficulty and the possible issue. We can help them there. Then after they have stumbled because of their burden we can help them most, "and so fulfill the law of Christ."

Lastly, there is the burden that we cannot and should not bear. "God's burden." His blessedness and glory is not so much to receive praises as to bear burdens that we cannot bear. "Cast thy burden on the Lord." His burden would break us down utterly, even to attempt to carry it or to worry over it. Indeed that burden of my own, too heavy for me to carry, would crush me completely. Can any man carry the burden of his own sin, the heavy load of his own wounded spirit? He need not. "He bore our sins in his own body upon the tree." And he bears up the sinner in the arms of his strength. He is the infinite helper, and upon the broad shoulders of his strength rests everything beyond our power to bear. "The government is upon his shoulders," says the prophet. "The times," that vex us with their wars, and strifes, and corruptions, and problems, are not all these modern burdens his? Thus for the personal burden and the larger and impersonal one he is ever at hand. This point was aptly illustrated by an incident of a minister's little boy. He begged to carry a big new book up stairs into his father's study. But when half way up, and exhausted with tugging, he uttered a cry of distress, the father strode up behind him and gathered in his arms both boy and book and bore them up with ease and love. That is it: both the burden and the burden-bearer are his, and he has strength for the one, and both strength and love for the other.

The Rev. S. C. Bushnell officiated on Wednesday at the funeral of Mrs. Mary H. Dexter of Dorchester, aged 88 years. The deceased was the mother of Prof. F. B. Dexter of Yale college.

What does it mean? There has been an unprecedented sale of valentines in Arlington this present week. Does it mean a revival in business or a revival in love affairs? Let us hope the latter.

"The religion of joy" will be Dr. Watson's subject at the people's service tomorrow night. In the morning he will preach on "The double-minded man." All are welcome to these services.

The entertainment to be given on the evening of March 1st in G. A. R. Hall by Post 36 will prove an enjoyable event. There is to be a quartet of colored vocalists present, and Miss Pauline E. Hopkins will read selections from her writings.

Mr. Bernard McGowan, whose pleasant home is on Mytic street, keeps himself posted not only on the Philippine war, but upon the British-Boer war, and he does not hesitate to declare himself in full sympathy with the Boers.

Joseph Butterfield, S. C. Frost and Charles Frost have just returned from a two weeks' visit in Florida. The special object of their trip was the visit they made to the truck gardens of that state. They report a pleasant and profitable journey.

The Loyal Temperance Legion, now numbering 85 members, is to have a stereopticon entertainment on Monday evening. Their superintendent, Rev. James Yeames, will tell the story, and Mr. J. Palmer of Boston will show the 70 or 80 pictures.

The Arlington Board of Trade will hold its next regular meeting on Thursday evening, the 22d of this month. Matters of special importance is to come before that meeting, so a full attendance is requested. Some twenty-five applications for membership will be acted upon.

Mr. Willard P. Hardy, the popular clerk at Perham's drug store, resigned his position at this store last week, and on Thursday entered the employ of Mr. Omar W. Whittemore. Willard has a large number of friends, who wish him success in his new place.

We read on Friday a cablegram from Norway to William T. Wood & Co., ordering instant a 22-inch ice plough of the above firm. They have ice up in Norway that is ice, so it is fortunate they know just where to purchase ice ploughs that will cut the biggest freeze they have.

Do not forget the vaudeville performance to be given by the school children of the town under the auspices of the Arlington Woman's Club in the Town hall, Feb. 22d, at 3 o'clock p. m. The receipts are to be applied to the school picture fund. Give the school children a crowded house.

The Litchfield studio will be open the entire day of the 22d for those who desire sitting for pictures. Holidays at this studio are always busy ones, many not being able to find time on other days. It is requested that all who can will come early, as many engagements are already booked.

Mrs. S. Fred Hicks, Mrs. H. G. Porter, Mrs. William T. Foster, Mrs. King, Mrs. Gov. Brackett and Mrs. Harry W. Bullard occupied a box on Thursday afternoon at Castle Square Theatre, and so with the most agreeable surroundings took in the play, "The Bells of Haslemere."

The Messrs. Wetherbee had a very successful opening at their new store in Swan's block on Saturday last, the store being well patronized. The store has been made very attractive. The bicycles of this year's model are among the best on the market. Many orders were booked. Mr. Ivers Wetherbee, for a number of years with A. Stowell & Co., thoroughly understands the watch business, and deserves your patronage.

The monthly evening service of the First Parish (Unitarian) church will be held tomorrow at seven o'clock sharp, and will include attractive vocal and instrumental music. Rev. Frederic Gill will give a lecture sermon on "Spiritism and Faith in Immortality," with special reference to Dr. M. J. Savage's recent book on that topic. All are invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Bullard attended on Wednesday evening the "quest recital" given by Madame Madeline Schiller in Jamaica Plain, and immediately following were present at the brilliant reception given the distinguished artist by the well-known lawyer and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Morse at their delightful home.

If one desires to catch Mr. David Clark, the live liverrman on Mill street, at home, he must call very early in the morning or late at evening, for Mr. Clark is busy during the entire day in conveying parties with his 2.40 roadsters to various points. Mr. Clark is a busy man, and largely so because he advertises in the Enterprise.

Belmont loses in the death of Mr. Joseph L. Frost one of its prominent and respected citizens. He proved himself a valiant soldier in the war of the rebellion. He was in the battle of Antietam, and was seriously wounded in the battle at Gettysburg. Mr. Frost never turned his back upon the enemy. At the time of his death he was postmaster. Many friends will deeply mourn the death of Mr. Frost.

An interesting meeting of the Arlington Woman's Club, under the management of the art committee, was held in Grand Army Hall on Thursday afternoon. The members of this committee are the following: Mrs. J. T. Trowbridge, chairman; Mrs. Benjamin A. Norton and Mrs. G. W. W. Sears. Mrs. Adeliza B. Chaffee of Worcester spoke in a graphic way of "The Twelve Masterpieces of the World." Mrs. Lillian Lord Wood of Lexington rendered selections on the piano. There was an unusually large attendance.

The annual inspection of the Almshouse by the board of selectmen occurred on Wednesday evening. There were present the board of selectmen, board of assessors, sewer commissioners, water commissioners and police department. After the inspection, which found everything in trim shape, an elaborate dinner was served by the superintendent and his wife. Immediately following the dinner, the officials and guests repaired to the parlors, where an enjoyable musical programme was rendered. Mr. E. S. Fessenden presided at the piano.

We have often wondered if what is usually termed "blue Monday" with the clergy is after all any "blue Monday" at all. If we may judge from the smiling faces of our Arlington ministers as we see them on each Monday morning as the weeks succeed each other, making their way to the train bound for Boston, then we can but conclude that an enjoyable time is just ahead of them.

The Arlington Young Men's Club has a large and growing membership, and has become already one of the most popular institutions in Arlington. Its literary and social advantages are much enjoyed and prized. Its regular meetings, come on Tuesday evening of each week, though its rooms are open at all times for its members. The A. Y. M. C. was a happy thought of those who first suggested the organization.

Shortly after four o'clock yesterday afternoon word was sent to police headquarters that a man had fallen from a market wagon on Mass. avenue, near Central street. The injured man, by papers in his pocket, was identified as Aaren Maybury of Billerica, and he was taken to the police station, Dr. Keegan summoned. On examination a bad cut was found over the left eye which required eight stitches, while another cut was found under the eye. It is likely the horse kicked him as he fell. He regained consciousness at nine in the evening. His son from Bedford and son-in-law, A. Dutton, came down, the latter staying all night, taking Mr. Maybury home on the seven o'clock train this morning.

Mr. Herbert F. Winn, who for the past two years has been a clerk in the drug store of Mr. Omar W. Whittemore, severed his connection there on Wednesday. Mr. Winn leaves his present position to go to Worcester, Mass., and act as agent for the Moxie Nerve Food people in and about that city. He is indeed fortunate in procuring such an excellent position. Mr. and Mrs. Winn will take with them the good will and very best wishes of their wide circle of friends and acquaintances of this and surrounding towns. In Mr. Winn the Moxie people have a man who will work for their best interests, as he is a hustler and a business man. The Enterprise congratulates you, Herbert.

We desire to call the especial attention of our readers to Prof. William Bendix, teacher of the piano, violin, guitar and clarinet. Prof. Bendix is not only cultured in the line of music, but he has received the culture of the German schools. A man of pleasing address, of scholarly attainments, and of that breadth of mind which carries with it all the amenities of life, Prof. Bendix is the man above all others in this locality to give direction and care to the musical training of the children. Prof. Bendix has already through his work commended himself most favorably to the people of Arlington and surrounding towns. We repeat that we earnestly call the attention of Arlington to Prof. Bendix as one skilled in his profession.

A very attractive and unique heart party was given by the T. Z. C. V. Z. club at the home of Misses Evelyn and Harriet Gott on Medford street on Wednesday evening. More than a thousand hearts of bright hues adorned the rooms, giving them a very dainty appearance. The first part of the evening was spent in playing a most enjoyable game of hearts, prizes being awarded to Miss Edith G. Fowle and Mr. Oscar S. Creeley. Then followed a hearty luncheon, where hearts appeared anew in the form of sandwiches, cookies, candy and ices. An amateur postmaster was kept busy distributing the costly and up-to-date valentines. Much sport was then caused by an exciting lozenger hunt, the prize being won by Miss Lorna Russell. Dancing and flash-lights ended the evening's entertainment.

Next Thursday at the Moseley Cycle agency in Fowle's block will occur the annual opening of the bicycle season at this popular store. As we stated two weeks ago, the store has been newly tinted a light blue with a dark-blue border, giving a very pleasing effect, and everything has been changed over to receive the handsome line of wheels this firm will keep the coming season, as well as the full stock of bicycle sundries and an extensive line of sporting goods. You will find your choice of all the standard makes of wheels, from $22 to $75—the Orient, Crescent, Eagle, Pierce, Stearns, Crawford, Dayton and Beebe. The motto of this firm, "Fair and Square," will be the same this year, and Mr. James Underwood, the manager, will receive all in the same courteous manner, and will see that all wants are expeditiously attended to. The new work shop is completed, and all the modern machinery for repair work has been put in. All are invited to inspect this fine display on Thursday next. A free concert will be given all day.

During the first days of the coming May there is to be a race run along Medford street, between the fleet-footed steeds of Father Mulcahy and Mr. W. W. Rawson, which hardly can fail of interest to all Arlington. The race has been planned for the following reasons: Mr. Rawson insists that the projected electric railway along Medford street will prove a terror to his trotter, and thereby endanger its life and his own as well, while Father Mulcahy stoutly insists that no electric railway can frighten his less than 2.40 bay, or in any way endanger its life or his own. So, to test the facts, Mr. Rawson and Father Mulcahy are to have the proposed race down Medford street early in May, provided the electric is running at that time. If Mr. Rawson is unfortunately upset and "spilled out" by his trotter taking fright at the din and rattle of the oncoming electric, and his trotter distanced by Father Mulcahy's fleet three-year-old, then Mr. Rawson is to place at his own expense a brilliant electric light in front of St. Mulcahy's church edifice. If, on the other hand, Father Mulcahy's flyer is so crazed by the lightning speed of the horseless car that his reverence is tumbled out of his carriage all in a heap, and the said flyer left in the dim distance, then Father Mulcahy is to deliver in the Town hall, when the full bloom and fragrance of the summer time are on, a lecture upon "Growing Plants Under the Glass;" the proceeds of the lecture to be applied to the public school fund. Reserved seats for the race are already in demand.

Ladies' night the 26.

Prof. Falvey gives an exhibition of fancy pool and billiard playing this evening.

The recital by the Tuxedo trio was well attended, the programme was an attractive one and encores were given heartily. About 100 were present. Pattee and Hutton won solid gold horseshoe stick pins as first prize, and Durgin and Gorham gold link buttons as second prize at the whist party last Saturday evening.

The members of the league team felt decidedly happy on Tuesday evening, they defeating the Newtowne bowlers in a well-contested game. While totals were low, yet in the last game 800 was reached. Score:

During a call that we made on Selectman Crosby at his home on Monday we saw that great big easy chair given him by his friends on the recent anniversary of his fifty-sixth birthday, with the pleasant note accompanying it, saying, "please sit down and be quiet," with many good wishes of the donors added. And then that loving cup which came from Mr. Crosby's little friends "way down east," occupies a conspicuous place on the sideboard. Mr. and Mrs. Crosby have in their possession the very cup from which Robert Burns sipped his wine. It is the self-same cup in which his Highland Mary brought Robert the pint of wine for which he asked as follows: "Gae bring to me a pint o' wine." The praises of Robert Burns will be sung so long as a Scotchman survives. What can surpass in tender, loving affection his verse "To Mary in heaven?"

Thou ling'ring star, with less'ning ray,
That lo'v'st to greet the early morn,
Again thou usher'st in the day,
My Mary from my soul was torn.
O Mary! dear departed shade,
Where is thy place of blissful rest?
See thou thy lover lowly laid?
Hear'st thou the groans that rend his breast?

Mrs. Crosby is of Scotch descent, and loyal is she to the land of Burns, the thistle and the Doon.

A. Y. M. C. NOTES.

Mr. H. A. Kidder of the Boston Herald addressed the Arlington Young Men's club on Tuesday evening on "The printing and making of newspapers." Mr. Kidder gave a very lucid and interesting sketch of the development of the art of printing and of the printing press. The contrast between the days of single impressions from clumsy wooden blocks and these days of great Hoe cylinder presses turning out many thousands of sheets of 24 pages every hour, was graphically illustrated. The wonderful work of a great newspaper office, accomplished every day, was described, and the modern miracle of producing and setting a new suit of type daily by the linotype machine was explained. Mr. Kidder was very attentively listened to and heartily thanked. Each one present took away a "line o' type" as a souvenir of the hour.

Two new members were elected, and one candidate proposed.

The members of the club are preparing for a play and dance to be given in the Town hall on March 24.

It is certainly better than to have the wrong kind, for by using those which are unsuitable, new errors of refraction are caused. The M. M. club will meet with Miss Edith Kendall on Monday evening.

Weekly prayer meeting was held in the Baptist chapel last evening, with Mr. Tingley as leader.

The musical service at the Park avenue Congregational church on Sunday evening brought together a large audience.

Messrs. William D. Elwell and Maxwell Brooks will hold their closing dance of the subscription series on next Wednesday evening.

Postmaster Blanchard has his office at the corner of Park avenue and Mass. avenue arranged and fitted up in convenient and attractive shape.

The services at the Baptist chapel tomorrow will be: Preaching at 10.45, Sunday school at 12 and evening service at 7. A. W. Lorimer, pastor.

The next meeting of the Woman's Benevolent society of the Baptist church will be held on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock at Mrs. Dickey's, 1119 Mass. avenue.

Can any one at the Heights inform the Enterprise office if one of the school registers of the Cutter school, kept from 1860 to 1863, can be had? We desire to look over the old names.

The Arlington Heights Baptist church wish to extend a vote of thanks to the Arlington Enterprise for the kindness and interest that has been shown them in many ways since the church has been formed.

At last accounts, Mr. Smith of Westminster avenue was very low, not being expected to live from one day to another. Much sympathy is felt for his wife and daughter in their anxiety and care for the dear one.

Mr. J. Prescott Gage, the real estate agent, has purchased Crescent hall, where he is to have his office. It is understood that Mr. Gage will have charge of Mrs. Nellie M. Farmer's real estate in this vicinity.

The Highland Whist club met with Mrs. Kendall on Wednesday evening. Prizes were awarded as follows: 1st, Mrs. Ed. White and Mr. Partridge; 2d, Mrs. Haskell and Mr. Kendall. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Schenck, whose pleasant home is on Appleton street, gave on Wednesday a valentine party, at which the thirty or more guests had a capital time. Mr. and Mrs. Schenck well understand the art of entertaining.

The supper given on Tuesday evening by the ladies of the Park avenue Congregational church was altogether a pleasant affair. The pastor, the Rev. Mr. Taylor, and Mrs. Taylor were present. After the supper a musical entertainment was rendered.

We met Dennis Reardon, one of our "boys," on Monday, with his purse crammed with money, and happy as you find one. Well, Dennis was a good boy in school, and he makes an industrious, successful man. Dennis believes in the Old High street Grammar school, and so do we.

A correction must be made in regard to the name of the little lady who gave the interesting reading at the reception to the pastor of the Baptist church last week. It was Miss Mabel Whippie of Hyde Park, instead of Griffin, as before reported. She well deserves to have her right name given to the public.

On Thursday evening there will be a concert, with choice talent from out of town, including the Tremont Temple quartette and other attractions, given at Crescent hall, under the auspices of the Heights Baptist church. The concert will begin at 7.45. Adults 25c., children of twelve and under, 15c.

There is every prospect now of a building boom in this locality the coming summer. Our people ought not to forget when contracting in the building line that Alexander Beaton and W. G. Kimball, residents with us, are both well known builders and contractors. Let us patronize home industries.

The Sunshine club met with Mrs. H. A. Gorham last Wednesday afternoon. There were four tables of whist. The first prize was taken by Mrs. Doull and the second by Mrs. Brockway. There will be no meeting next week. The club will hold their moonshine party or gentleman's night at the residence of Mr. Geo. R. Dwyer, Park avenue, on Tuesday of next week at eight o'clock.

Mr. C. A. Cushing's grocery store has been improved in appearance more than a hundred per cent. by the removal of the post office. In fact there is no more attractive store in Arlington than is Mr. Cushing's, and that he is now well rid of the post office, which must have been an incumbrance to him, his trade will necessarily increase. We congratulate you, Mr. Cushing, that you have no four hundred dollar job on your hands.

A call for a moment on Wednesday morning at the Cutter school found the principal, Miss Chaplin, and her assistants busily and happily at work with full numbers. The Cutter school is equal to the best in Arlington or elsewhere, and the teachers and pupils with the district deserve a better and more modern building. Give the Cutter district a school building equal in all its arrangements to those of the Locke school building. The town should lose no time in this matter.

Mrs. Henry Schumacher and others are doing a commendable work in raising funds for the purchase of a flag for the old Eureka engine. The old Eureka has done valiant service in protecting property from the flames, and now it is only fair that it should be loyally remembered for the days that are gone. Mrs. Schumacher should meet with a ready response in soliciting money for the flag. The formal presentation will take place on the evening of March 7. Down with your dollar. We have given ours, and gladly.

Considerable complaint is being made about boys, some of whom are old enough to know better, going around St. Valentine's week, blowing beans against people's windows and acting in a noisy manner about the premises. As some of these lads have previously made disturbances on the Sabbath, some of our people think it is high time that their belligerent conduct was suppressed.

We had occasion to speak in the last issue of the Enterprise of the miserable condition of some of our sidewalks during these rainy days. On Monday we climbed the Heights in a sea of mud. Something should be done at once by the town to better the condition of our sidewalks. Meanwhile it would be a christian work if property holders in this locality would so improve the immediate grounds about their homes that the caller on business or otherwise might have the privilege of pulling their door-bells without first getting stuck fast in the mud.

Miss Daisy A. Swadkins of Arlington, organist of St. John's church, gave an organ recital at the N. E. Conservatory of Music on Monday evening last before a large audience, both friendly and critical. Miss Swadkins played the following programme:

Bibl. Van Eyken, "Vision," D. Ma. Sonata in D minor, Allegro con brio e con fuoco, Adagio.
Merkel, "Allegro con brio."
Bach, "Prelude and Fugue in D major."
Best, "Pastorale, G major."
Best, "March for a Church Festival."

It is fair to say that Miss Swadkins surprised even those who had heard her before by the verve and brilliancy of her playing. Her work showed evidence of careful study and patient practice. Her touch was firm and decisive, and her rendering of a somewhat difficult, not to say ambitious, programme, was intelligent and effective. Both in rapid and intricate and in pastoral and tender movements she displayed a full command of the noble instrument she handled.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Theodore Schwamb, we were taken on Wednesday morning all through his piano case manufactory. Mr. Schwamb has made this industry a marked success. We went through every department of his factory, from the room where work begins in the rough to the last room of all, where the finishing strokes are put upon the cases. The lumber for the work when received is put into a drying room, which is moderately heated, and there kept for six weeks, when it is sufficiently seasoned for the cases to be manufactured. From the drying-room it is taken to another department to be run through various planing machines. We were much interested in the scripping machine, which does its work down to a saavag. The piano case is made up of the thinnest surfaces coming from the scripping machine, and then these surfaces are so glued together that the piano case takes on a perfectly solid appearance, and, as a matter of fact, is stronger and more durable than the solid wood itself, in conformity that "the whole is equal to all its parts." Mr. Schwamb has the latest and most effective machinery for his work. He employs some twenty-five or thirty men in all the different departments of his factory. For more than forty years Mr. Schwamb has kept his factory buzzing, and today he is a full of push and vim in his business as he was at the start. Mr. Schwamb has succeeded because he has given his first care and attention to the work he has in hand.

The services last Sunday morning at the Baptist chapel were of a very interesting character. Mr. Lorimer, the esteemed pastor, spoke to the children from the text, "He shall gather the lambs in his arms and carry them in his bosom." Little Alice Dickey and Ethel Smith sung very sweetly "Hea the pennies dropping" as the offering was being taken. Miss Marie Schumacher sang a solo in her usual pleasing manner. Miss McDonald's infant class of about 35 sang very beautifully, showing that she had been very earnest in her teachings. At the session of the Sunday school, Mr. John White of Arlington, superintendent, formally resigned his position, and welcomed Mr. B. F. Cann most cordially to fill his place. In the evening the meeting took the form of a missionary concert. Miss Downey of Newton Centre, formerly a missionary in India among the Telugus, gave some very interesting remarks, and sang a very sweet and plaintive hymn in the Telugu language. Miss Downey was born in India, and her parents and a sister are there as missionaries. She expects when she completes her education to return to India and resume her labors there. She was accompanied by a young lady who is studying at Newton, preparing herself to go to India in about a year as a missionary.

Another man whom it does one good to meet is Mr. Thomas Higgins, the blacksmith on Mass. avenue. Mr. Higgins is one of those men who calls white and black black. He never "beats about the bush." If he has anything to say, he says it. One knows just where to find Mr. Higgins. Well informed upon all current questions, and with a mind of his own, it is always pleasant and instructive to listen to his conversation. We have known Mr. Higgins from 'way back, and he is a good man to know.

WHEN ROSINA COMES TO SEE US.

Rain may fall a pouring torrent,
Skies above be dark and drear,
Winds may howl with sound abhorrent—
When Rosina comes to see us,
All the world seems bright and clear!

Oh, the music of her laughter!
Oh, the sunshine in her eyes!
How it flutters, long time after!
When Rosina comes to see us,
Gladness comes, and discord dies.

Oh, the sympathy and sweetness
That she has for every one!
Sorrow flies with sudden fleetness
When Rosina comes to see us,
As the mists before the sun.

She's a bit of heaven's own beauty,
And to her what is best,
Life means love, and sweet is duty.
When Rosina comes to see us,
On that day we have been blest!

—Good Housekeeping.

THE BEAUTY PATCH

A RAILWAY COMEDY

BY RICHARD O'MONROY

The Salut-Lazare station is a gay station in the heart of the city, a stone's throw from the Opera and the boulevard, five minutes from the Champs Elysees, 20 minutes from the Bois de Boulogne. In the waiting room, the Hall of the Lost Footsteps, lined up before the booking offices or seeking quem devotent, there are always a lot of pretty girls with extravagantly velvet hair crowned by marvelous hats. They walk down the Rue d'Amster dam, their noses in the air, striking the echoing curbstones with their little high heels and generally carrying small leather bags, supposed to give them a countenance. What a countenance! Hence trips to Saint-Germain or Versailles, starting from the above mentioned gay station, are true pleasure trips.

Yesterday I was obliged to go to Versailles, and, profiting by my experience—in garrison there for several years—I strolled up and down, in no haste to choose my compartment. The railway carriages standing high above the level of the platform, the women passengers have to practice regular gymnastics to get aboard, and there are, therefore, all sorts of picturesque sights to be seen, not to speak of services to be rendered. For the latter purpose the best thing to do is to stand opposite the revolving platforms. They make the steps at least a foot higher—enough to make one quite dizzy climbing in. I was on the lookout for a pretty fellow traveler. I might even say that I had the embarrassment of choosing. It almost looks as if the Western company has the monopoly of good looking ticket holders. But, alas! Not one of them was alone. Naturally I avoided cavalry officers; they all go to the terminus of the line. The infantry add to the chances of a tete-a-tete, for they generally get off at Courbevoie, St. Cloud or Ville d'Avray. As to the artillery—that's a risk to run. There is a battery at Suresnes, but there are two regiments at Versailles as well.

I was at this stage of perplexity when, in one of the last of the first class compartments, I caught sight of a pretty brunette to be classified among the piquante brunettes—velvety eyes, fringed with long lashes, a faintly shadowed upper lip and above the left corner of the mouth—a souvenir of a bygone century—a dainty little black patch that our gallant ancestors would have called killing. She wore a maize colored bengaline bodice, trimmed with gurgule. On her head was perched a big hat with outspread white wings that made her look like a valkyrie—but a gay, not a warlike one. Beside her was seated a large, elderly gentleman, with big mustaches, a decoration in his buttonhole. He had a military air and imposing eyebrows and was reading the paper. But, from time to time, he raised suspicious eyes on her—the eyes of a proprietor defending his domain—the husband, evidently.

I got into the carriage and seated myself discreetly opposite the pair, but in the far corner. Although I had made a slight bow on entering, I did not have the good fortune to claim the lady's attention. She seemed preoccupied and kept her head out of the window, as if she were expecting some one. The mustached gentleman, however, returned my bow most politely. He was no doubt obliged to me for having left the seat opposite him unoccupied. At the moment the train was starting a handsome blond young fellow, carrying a brief case under his arm, sprang inside breathlessly. He rapidly exchanged a smile of intelligence with the lady and then sat down opposite her, knee to knee.

"Look sharp," I said to myself. "This is going to turn out interesting." Naturally the big elderly man, absorbed in his paper, had noticed nothing. The whistle sounded, the train started, and the fair young man, no doubt to appear occupied, began to turn the leaves of the voluminous document in the leather case. But every now and then he raised his eyes, and when it was easy to see that the lady with the patch smiled at him imperceptibly. It would have been impossible to be more imprudent, and this little maneuver, barely concealed, ran a great risk of being discovered by the man with the terrible eyebrows.

My soul is instinctively lenient to human weaknesses, and at the bottom of my heart I always find a secret pleasure on learning that the corporation of husbands counts one more victim. So as far as was possible I decided to come to the assistance of the sweethearts by attracting the attention of the husband. Seizing the first slight pretext, I engaged him in conversation. As we approached Asnières I uttered a reflection that suddenly passed through my mind:

"To think that that bridge was cut in 1870! What was the good of it, pray, with Mont Valerien just opposite?" "It was idiotic," returned the decorated gentleman. "At that time I was on the staff of Admiral La Ronciere Le Noury. You have no conception, sir, of all the mistakes that were committed during the siege of Paris. Just fancy!"

Here the big man obligingly changed over into the corner seat, to be nearer me, leaving the pretty brune opposite the fair man, and he went on with his course in tactics with broad gestures, pointing out to me the magnificent horizon, the Seine like a silver ribbon at the foot of the green slopes of Courbevoie, and, far in the background, Paris, with its houses and its monuments, among which stood out the gigantic silhouette of the Arc de Triomphe, disbonored by scaffoldings, and the gilded dome of the Invalides.

"Remember," continued the decorated gentleman, "that we were occupying the region near Clichy."

But I hardly heard him, for I saw with terror that, prodding by my maneuver, our two lovers had begun to whisper in smothered tones. The brief was still spread out on the young man's knees, for the looks of the thing, but it was easy to see that he no longer even cast a glance at it. And the train sped along, and the soldier, absorbed by his memories, went on with his discourse on military history that I feigned to listen to most devoutly, so as to draw his attention to the left side of the line.

We reach St. Cloud; we enter the tunnel, and in the pitch darkness, on my word, I would swear that I heard the sound of a kiss. When we rush out again into the light, I cast a glance at the fair haired man, who is once more deeply absorbed in his case. What do I make out on his left nostril but a funny little black spot! Sapristi! It is the patch, the killing patch, that in a thoughtless contact has loosened and passed from the lips of the dark beauty to the nose of her admirer.

I foresaw a horrible tragedy, for my tactician turned a questioning and suspicious look upon the lady, as if he had found something altered in her appearance, he hardly knew what. I would have given worlds to have been able to whisper to the good looking young man, "For heaven's sake, remove that compromising patch at once, or you are betrayed!" Unfortunately it was quite out of the question, seated as I was at a distance. So it seemed wiser to recall the officer's thoughts to the war of 1870 and the heights of Viroday. But he no longer paid any heed to me. He chuckled in a sinister way behind his fierce mustache, gazing at the bepatched nose of the fair young man.

As for the woman, crimson, overcome with terror, she began to fan herself violently, a most distressing sight. What was going to happen? What terrible sentence was the implacable judge going to pronounce on the guilty wretches cowering beneath his gaze? Was I going to be obliged to look on in this narrow railway carriage at a challenge, a boxing match, perhaps a butchery, a massacre?

Suddenly, to my intense relief, I caught sight of the three little yew trees, trimmed into sugar loaf shape, that guard the entrance into the grand monarch's town. A guard called out: "Versailles! Versailles!" The train stopped. I got out, determined to stick to the officer to see what would happen. Judge of my stupor on seeing the lady take the fair man's arm and trip along at his side, while the decorated gentleman said to me as he saw them disappear:

"They are charming. I know them. They live quite near me in the Rue Duplessis. The husband is a lawyer. They are half way through the honeymoon, as you might infer, sir. What a hug he gave her in the tunnel at Ville d'Avray, to be sure!"—Translated From the French For Argonaut.

We spent some little time on Thursday afternoon in running through the different departments of Mr. Charles Gott's carriage factory. It would be the old story over again to simply say we found all hands busy. We found them unusually busy, as the spring orders are already coming in for market wagons. While Mr. Gott does a large business in repairing in all its branches, making fine painting a specialty, still as a manufacturer his work as a whole can only be seen in his carriage building. There is nothing on wheels, save the automobile, that he doesn't manufacture. His easy-going riding carriages are known not only in the suburbs of Boston, but in the city itself as well, while his market wagons have advertised him most favorably with every farmer and truck gardener within a radius of twenty-five miles of Boston. Mr. Gott has, through earnest, patient labor, and through that ability which counts, built up an industry here in Arlington which now ranks among the leading enterprises of the town. He informed us that his business gave promise of an excellent trade during the coming summer.

One must travel far and wide to meet a more agreeable man than Mr. William O. Menchin, the wheelwright, 939 Mass. avenue. We had a pleasant chat with Mr. Menchin the other morning just after that big rain. He, as well as we, was unusually happy that the sun had made its appearance again, so that our talk took in the sunshine. Mr. Menchin informed us that his spring orders were coming in, and that he was looking forward for a busy season.

Don't forget that the Arlington Sea Food Market keeps constantly in store everything that swims the waters.
